cerned for their welfare, a thing that inspires the .soldier with much confidence.

14th. In the present .situation of Europe my policy aims straight at England. I have at Boulogne 1000 gunboats and flatboats that will carry 100,000 men and 10,000 horses.

10th. Citoyen General Murat: I have received your letter. If the Duke de Berry wen* in Paris at the house of M. de Coben;id, and if M, d'Orleans were staying with the Marquis di Gallo, not only would I have* them tirrested this very night and shot, but 1 would also have the.se ambassadors arrested and make them suffer the same fate; the law of nations would not be seriously aiteeted,

There is no other prince in Paris than the Duke d'Enghien, who will arrive at Vineennes to-morrow. (Jet that well into your head, and don't listen to anything you may hear to the contrary.

SfcOth. The ci-devant Duke d'Enghien, Hmised of having carried arms against the Republic, of having Iwren and still Ijeing in the pay of England, of plotting with thut Power against the security* internal and external, of the Republic, shall be tried by a court-martial of m*ven mem-ln*rs appointed by the governor of Paris, iytmtmbled at Vineennes.

4 f. M,

(To General Mural.) The Duke d'Enghbii in to Im taken to the, fort of Vinae«ne«» where arrangement* have bw* made to receive him. lie in traviilling under tha name of Pleiwis.

4 .SO f. M.

(To dtoyen H&rdL) A |»won whouc; name is to r^»